

ROMANCE ENDS IN PRETTY WEDDING

Lawrence Faucett, Prominent Chattanooga, Now Officer, Marries in England.

WAS RHODES SCHOLAR

Letter of Introduction Begins Courtship Which Results in International Wedding.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Rev. Lawrence W. Faucett, of Chattanooga, to Miss Marie Grace Margaret Barr, which was solemnized in England, July 18, 1918. The ceremony was held in the little village church in Surrey.

A letter of introduction to a wealthy Englishwoman which lay forgotten with other papers for nearly a year was the beginning of a courtship which resulted in the marriage of Rev. Lawrence W. Faucett, of Chattanooga, to Miss Marie Grace Margaret Barr, of Mount Rose estate, in the village of Surrey, in upper Warrington, England, on July 18.

Rev. Faucett was the winner of the Rhodes scholarship in Tennessee in 1914 and left here on May 10, 1915, in order that he might take up Y. M. C. A. work before he took up his studies at Oxford. In the rush of the Rhodes scholarship in Tennessee in 1914 and left here on May 10, 1915, in order that he might take up Y. M. C. A. work before he took up his studies at Oxford.

When the United States declared war the young man could not remain out of action and enlisted in the English army. After serving a short while in the ranks he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant in the flying corps. He has not yet completed his course in this corps; however he expects to soon and will then ask to be transferred to the American army, which request no doubt will be granted.

Saw Dr. Leaning Clark, formerly of Chattanooga, was in England just about a week before the wedding took place and it was the desire of Mr. Faucett that Dr. Clark perform the ceremony. However, Dr. Clark, who is now a major in the Red Cross service, was unable to do so because of full charge of the Red Cross work in that country and it was impossible for him to perform the ceremony.

The bride is said to come from one of the oldest and best known families in England. She is the daughter of James Barr, the magazine writer and is related to the Barr family of Chattanooga, of which Thomas and William Barr are members. Mrs. Faucett's father, James Barr, was a novelist of international fame. She is a niece of Robert Barr, the novelist.

Lieut. Faucett, of Chattanooga, and has one brother, Kenneth Faucett, who has also joined the fighting forces. The air force of which Lawrence Faucett is a member is known as the "Royal Air Force."

CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS TO BE STARTED NEXT MONTH

As a result of the recent conference at Blue Ridge, N. C., of the city Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A., the finance committee decided to launch a campaign for the two associations to launch a financial campaign. The date has been fixed for early in September, and Miss Hughes, of the national board of the Y. W. C. A., from New York, has opened an office in Atlanta, and will have entire charge of the southern division of the campaign for the Y. W. C. A.

The ladies of the Ridgefield Baptist church will hold a rally Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the church building. Mrs. W. F. Robinson, president of the Ocoee Missionary union, will have charge of the program.

OPEN HOUSE FOR SOLDIERS AT FIRST BAPTIST TONIGHT

With several hundred new men recently stationed at the "open house" for soldiers Saturday night at the First Baptist church. A number of the men from Texas have promised to be present and take part in the program. Special amusement is being provided by Mrs. W. F. Ruff and other ladies of Circle number 7.

The Smart Sunday school class, of the First Baptist church, will provide a program for next Tuesday night. Miss Leone Battle and Mrs. C. E. Daniel and G. M. Smart will be in charge.

MAJ. BELL TELLS NURSES WAR HAS JUST BEGUN

Tea in Honor Nurses Who Took Part in Parade at Home Mr. and Mrs. Garnett Andrews.

Maj. Bell, of Fort Oglethorpe, spoke from the courthouse platform to the assembly gathered after the nurses' parade Friday afternoon. He was introduced by Mrs. Mary Ellen Howard, general chairman of the registration campaign for nurses being conducted by the women's committee of council of defense.

Maj. Bell emphasized in his talk the ready response of the American soldier to the call of duty. He said there was no question in his mind what the American boys were doing over there; he knew they were doing their duty, that the spirit of the national anthem, of the "Marseillaise" and of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" was the spirit of these men. The young women were anxious to go over there, he said, and some of them were afraid that the war would be over before they got there, but he took occasion to assure them that the war had just begun, also that there would be many hardships to endure, but he knew there was no need of an appeal to the young women of America any more than there was to the boys, that they saw their duty and were ready to make any sacrifice to perform it. Probably some of them would lose their lives. Two of the nurses, he said, that worked in his unit in the Dardanelles had been killed.

He said he had seen as many as 100 wounds in one man's body, and had taken a handful of shrapnel from others. That he had seen enough metal to fill an ordinary sized basin taken from a human body.

Mrs. Charles R. Hyde, who carried the flag of Tennessee in the parade, which she had especially made for the occasion, was called to the platform. Mrs. Hyde said she was no professional nurse, but she felt like that of the nurses, that while she must be content to work and wait at home, the nurses could go to that country where her fellows had flown and do the service for them that she was denied.

Miss Ernestine Non followed Mrs. Hyde with a brief talk.

TEA FOR NURSES IN PARADE.

Following the mass meeting at the courthouse the nurses both of the city and army post were taken in automobiles to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Garnett Andrews, on East Fourth street, where they gathered on the lawn. Fruit punch was served by the Godmothers from umbrella-covered booths, and camp chairs were placed on the smooth and level green lawn. A tall tree hung its limbs in graceful decoration at one side of the lawn. Down a slope a special place was arranged for the military band that had so splendidly served the parade.

The law in the rear of the house accommodated the colored delegation of the parade, and everything served to remind one of the good, old ante-bellum days. The uniforms of the nurses, in uniform of blue and white, and at the entrance of the law to greet her guests, and give them a cordial welcome.

TO TRAIN YOUTH OF COUNTY IN WAR SERVICE

Corps Being Organized Here That Will Make Schoolboys Efficient.

A campaign will be started in Chattanooga right away for the purpose of enlisting the young men of the city in special school training for the coming school year. The young men enlisted in the schools for the coming year will be registered as members of what is to be known as the "Students' Army Training Corps."

The studies taken up by the young men will include medicine, engineering, chemistry, psychology, economics and many others. These training corps are being formed throughout the country and are organized for the purpose of giving the young men who are to form the future armies a chance to get practical training beforehand.

Prof. Harry Clark, of Knoxville, who has been appointed state chairman of the National Council of Education, held a meeting in Chattanooga Friday evening.

In explaining the organization, Prof. Clark stated that while the young men who enlist in this corps will be in the military service of the United States, they will not be classed as inactive service until they have attended the training schools during the summer months and received the pay of private for six weeks.

when they reach the age of 21. They were to be placed in Class 5 by their local board and be permitted to complete the course while they are taking, provided it is recommended by the officer in charge. Today's announcement from Washington, lowering the draft age to 18 years, may effect this situation. Washington has announced, however, that these boys will not be placed in the trenches until they are 21. From the high schools and colleges the young men will be permitted to go into the military officers' training camps and complete their military training in order to become officers.

PATRIOTIC SHOW WINDOWS IN DOWNTOWN STORES

Designed by Members of 'Woman's Committee of Council of Defense.

The committee on window display for the student nurses campaign, conducted by the woman's committee of the Council of National Defense, has two very attractive window showings in the business section. One is at Miller Bros. and was supervised by Mrs. C. M. Williamson.

The posters were done by Lynn Miller, who recently came here from Oklahoma. He is quite a young artist and shows remarkable original talent. One card represents the Goddess of Liberty holding high the blazing torch. A soldier and a Red Cross nurse are presented, returning from victory as they face the statue.

The other is a Red Cross ambulance arriving with its patient at a Red Cross building. The designs are well executed and calculated to attract notice from the passersby. In this window are figures representing two wounded soldiers, and one nurse for the two forming the central figure. Back of her is a table supplied with medicines, bandages, thermometers, etc. The scene is so real as to be truly pathetic.

Poster Display Window.

Another window arranged by Mrs. J. L. McEwen at T. L. Payne's. It is filled with posters, mostly magazine covers. In the center is a colored picture of two other posters are named, "Duty Calls," and "Are You With Us?"

Suspended over the entrance of the Red Cross nurse wearing her cap with the Red Cross insignia.

The display will be moved to the window of Edwards & LeBon next week.

REAL PAINT, NOT COSMETICS, MAKE THE LITTLE GRAY CHURCH LOOK NEW

Ladies of congregation prove adept at manly art. Another one of man's exclusive jobs falls before onslaught of modern women. Highland Park Christian church smiles for more than one reason.

Here they are in skirts and high-heeled shoes on ladders painting a church. It is all right, though, because they did it from a patriotic standpoint.

Several weeks ago the fact was brought out at a meeting of the members of the East Lake Christian church that the building needed painting very badly. The pastor, Rev. H. M. Hale, asked the question, "Who was to do it?"

Some one said that a number of the men had gone to war, and that the labor question had grown to be a problem. The men discussed the matter for several minutes with the pastor, but did not decide. Finally the women who were present volunteered their services. "We have painted floors," they said, and all blushed when some thoughtless bystander suggested—cheeks; so the men accepted, somewhat dubiously.

Dr. Hale and Dr. Crayton E. Brooks were detailed to supervise the work, and the first coat of gray paint was put on the little church in East Lake two weeks ago in a very lady-like fashion.

The men were present when this occurred, holding ladders and acting as lookers on, but soon found out that the women knew just about as much about painting as they did.

Last Thursday was the date set for the final coat, but bad weather, causing some delay, the women were at the church early in the morning with paint brushes in hand. They waited an hour on the two ministers, but when they didn't show up, began looking behind the church doors for the buckets of paint. Finding the paint and ladders, they decided to proceed with their work alone.

"Prepared Paint, Ready for Use," was printed plainly on the paint buckets, so all they had to do was to open and dig in. One little girl was sent home for her mother's can opener and another for a big bucket. The paint was poured out in the big bucket and thoroughly mixed, and the work started. Just about this time the two preachers came up. One declared that he had had trouble with his car, and the other one stated that he was waiting for the doctor with his car to call by and get him. They examined the paint, and found that the women had done everything necessary and were "on the job."

The church has not only been painted by the women members, but the money for the paint was also made by these industrious women. They gave an ice cream supper and raised $30. They bought the paint and also a sign which was put up on the church lot, and still have some money on hand.

RECORD MADE IN MARINE RECRUITS

Local Recruiting Station Accepted Forty-Eight Men for Service During July.

The local marine corps recruiting station had a record-breaking number of enlistments last month. Out of ninety-six men examined during the month forty-eight were accepted and transferred to one of the marine training stations. These figures show that 50 per cent. of the average men are physically fit for the marines. This, according to the recruiting officers, is a pretty high percentage.

Corpl. Lawrence DeGarmo, attached to the local station, was promoted to sergeant Aug. 1. This was due, according to some, to the fact that he was contemplating joining the matrimonial squad soon and his kind-hearted superiors knew that another good marine would be in the casualty list if he tried to do this on the salary of a corporal.

The age limit was changed on Aug. 1 and men can now enlist from 18 to 40, inclusive. This will give many men a chance to enlist who formerly were above the enlistment age, which was 35. As many men have been turned down because of this, it is expected that these men will seize this opportunity and again apply for enlistment.

A record given by Sergt. Schuler, and which he declares has been equalled by no other body of soldiers in the world, is that:

"Among the many deserved tributes paid to the American marine corps we do not recall mention of one evidence of the splendid care taken of the men. In the report of their casualties abroad for June 7 the total number of marines who died in action or from wounds was 1,106, while the total number of those who died of disease or accident was just exactly one. No other body of soldiers in the world, we imagine, could show a record like this."
